highrisk.news

Weekly digest

The week in high-risk industries

Week 46, 2026 (9–15 November)

5 stories inside · swipe

1 Fintech

Bank Millennium adds instalments to BLIK Płacę Później: 3, 6 or 12 months

Bank Millennium lets customers split BLIK Płacę Później purchases above about EUR 68 into 3, 6 or 12 monthly instalments at 14.5% annual interest. The option is available only to the bank's customers for now.

2 Crypto

Kraken launches recurring ACH deposits for US customers

Kraken customers in the US can now schedule automatic daily, weekly, fortnightly or monthly ACH deposits from a linked bank account, with no deposit fee.

Betting

Kalshi in Talks to Raise Funding at $65 Billion Valuation

Prediction market platform Kalshi is in talks for a new round at a $65 billion valuation, 62.5% above its October valuation, with sports betting still the main driver of trading.

4 Gambling

CFTC May Charge Kalshi as New York Judge Denies Novig Injunction

The CFTC has reportedly warned Kalshi of possible charges over contract filings, while a New York federal judge refused to block state action against Novig's sports contracts.

5 Fintech

UK loan late payments up 24% as mid-market lenders lag, GoCardless and Aryza find GoCardless and Aryza: the share of late loan repayments in the UK rose from 9.3% to 11.5%, with mid-market lenders and motor finance hit hardest.

highrisk.news

Read the full digest

highrisk.news/weekly/2026-W46

Daily news for iGaming, betting, payments, crypto, dating and nutra — plus PSP outage alerts on Telegram: t.me/highrisk_media